should be put into something. If you never raised a garden before, just try a small one this year and see how easy it will be to help out your table supply.

You will find complete directions on the back of each package, or there will be a leaflet sent with the seeds.

These little catalogues are all hand made—not the great showy ones you generally see, but it is seeds we have to sell and not catalogues. By doing this we keep down expenses and are going to give you better and more seeds for the money.

Our little girl, Lillian, thirteen years old, has handpainted the covers, Albin, eleven years old, has folded and fitted them and the most important member of our company, Mrs. Keays, does the housework and cooks for us all and works in the little greenhouse, so you see we all work together raising seeds, cleaning them and getting them to you in good shape.

We wanted to get some illustrations in the catalogue but did not get it done, but if we find lots of new friends this year we hope to give you a nicer one next year with lots of pictures in it.

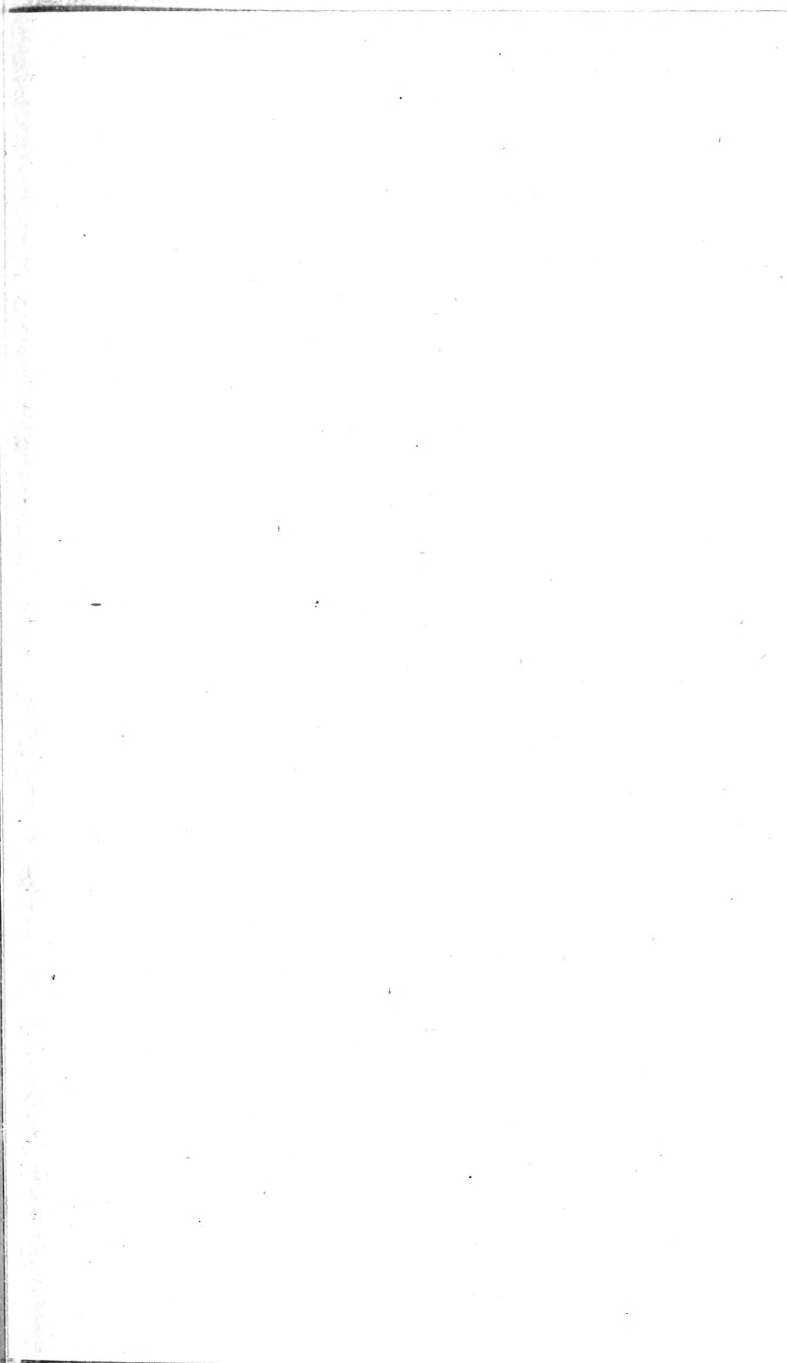

If there are any questions you want to ask about growing things, just ask away; send a stamp for reply and we will try to help you out.

We have been farming and gardening for years and were always experimenting to find the best ways of doing things, so we believe we can help you.

Hoping you will send us a trial order and that the coming season will be a very successful one in every way and that everyone will do his or her part to make it the best one we ever had, I remain,

Yours for peace, happiness and prosperity,

HAROLD C. KEAYS, Elk River, Minn.

Greetings to All

Well, the great war is over at last and we are all glad of it. But now we must all take hold and help build up again.

There will surely be great famines over in Europe unless the United States sends enormous quantities of food over there, and that will lessen our supply here; so all kinds of fruits and vegetables will surely be greatly needed this coming season.

Another great thing has happened and that is that the drink curse has been swept from our country. Won't this be a fine country to live in now? Just think of it—a country with no saloons in it. When we get them replaced with fine churches and schools, what a grand change it will be!

We have been raising garden seeds for many years and selling them to the stores and neighbors around us, but we have been thinking probably we have many friends scattered all over the United States who would like to buy our seeds. So if we can only get acquainted we could sell to you just as well as we can right here to the stores.

Our motto is: "More seeds for your money," and to sell seeds by the package just as cheap as by the ounce. So you will find more seeds in our packages than are usually found. We also only charge five cents a package while others charge ten and fifteen cents.

This is going to be a year when we will need all the garden stuff we can grow. Every foot of land
